

Title IIIC (Nutrition Programs) - The OAA Nutrition Programs include the Congregate Nutrition Program and the Home-Delivered Nutrition Program. These programs are meant to 1) reduce hunger and food insecurity, 2) promote socialization, 3) promote health and well-being, and 4) delay adverse health conditions. The intent is to make community-based nutrition services available to older adults who may be at risk of losing their independence and their ability to remain in the community. The OAA Nutrition Programs also provide a range of related services including nutrition screening, assessment, education, and counseling.
